The Sportsman's World

It's a place apart from the throng. Over the horizon from suburbs and cultivated fields. Beyond the sounds and smells of civilization. It is a hen mallard herding her brood of ducklings across a secluded Canadian bay. Or the lullaby of an Ozark stream flowing by a campsite on a gravel bar. It's crouching in a blind with the whistle of wings overhead. Kicking up a covey of quail. Laying a fly gently beside a rise on a boulder-strewn trout stream. At times like this there is a magic in being alive. In savoring the cleanness of solitude. Executing well-learned outdoor skills. Appreciating simple things like the quake of an aspen leaf, or the companionship of a campfire after a hard day in the field. Or how about the sudden cough of a jaguar in the still jungle night. The thrill of seeing a giant marlin attack a trolled bait. The sportsman's world is exciting. But it is also relaxing. Peaceful. An opportunity to learn more about life and do a better job of living it.

GREAT BEAR LAKE—8 DAYS

The midnight sun glistens across the sparkling surface of Great Bear Lake, illuminating 11,780 square miles of unspoiled water. This fourth largest lake in North America has a depth of 1,356 feet, second only to Tahoe. Lake trout weighing 50 and 60 lbs. are not uncommon; grayling and pike grow to trophy sizes. International record books affirm its potential for lunker catches. You can expect to hook hundreds of pounds of lake trout, grayling and pike on this eight day/seven night angling adventure. Located on the Arctic Circle in Canada's remote Northwest Territory, Branson's Lodge provides some of the best fishing in the Americas, plus fine accommodations. Rooms are comfortable and meals superb. There's a spacious lodge, self-service bar and native handicraft store. Though temperatures during the fishing season—July 2 through September 3—often reach into the mid-80s, boating on this Arctic country lake is chilly. Bring warm clothing, insulated underwear, rain gear, boots and gloves. The package price includes the round trip flight from Edmonton to Branson's Lodge (Sunday to Sunday), accommodations, meals, boat, motor, guide and preparation of 30 lbs. of fish filets. Optional fly-in trips for grayling and Arctic char fishing are available.

ARCTIC CHAR FISHING—7 DAYS

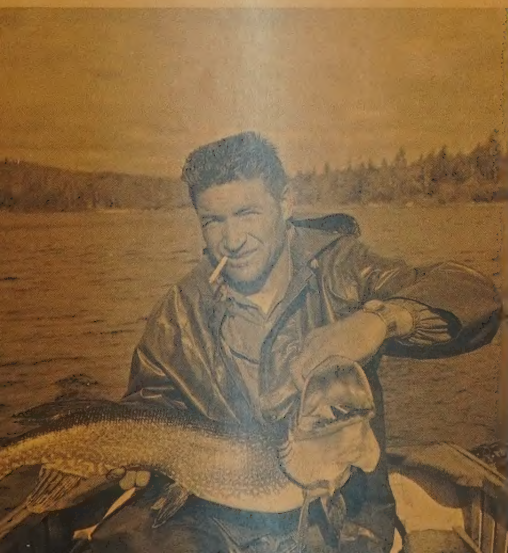

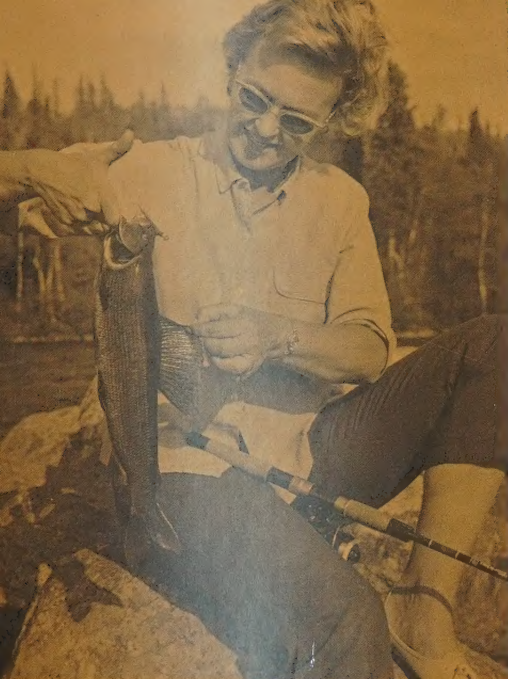

Albert Edward Bay is so far north that it is almost off the Canadian map. It is difficult and expensive to get to, but once you're there with a fishing rod in hand, all the effort is worth it. This is the home of the colorful Arctic char, a spot where these fish are so thick that daily limits of big fish are virtually guaranteed. Fish the waters near your base camp or board a pontoon plane for a day's adventure on one of the 14 surrounding lakes. Regardless, you'll cast where the scarlet schools churn the crystalline shallows, and you'll always catch fish. Due to the far-north location, the season is extremely limited—July 15 through August. But, what a season! Action is fast-paced from ice-out to the first frost. We recommend a casting or spinning rod with plenty of backbone. Reels should be loaded with 10- to 35-lb. test line. Bring an assortment of Dardevles and spinners. Char hit flies early in the season, so if you're a fly fisherman take note. Bring waders for stream fishing, rain gear, warm winter clothing and gloves, etc. Temperatures range from 50 degrees in the daytime to zero at night, and the season is from July 15 to September 1. Fishing license is $10. Tour includes six nights at camp in cabins or heated tent frame units; meals, guide, boat, motor, and lunches; and preparation of fish. Air fare between Edmonton and Albert Edward Bay (2600 miles), plus meals and bar services on plane, $400 per person; pay locally.

Saskatchewan

GRAYLING AND TROUT—7 DAYS

During most of the season you can look out of your cottage window and see the grayling dimpling the water in front of the lodge. Morberg's Camp, located on Saskatchewan's Black Lake, is an outstanding Canadian fishing spot for grayling, lake trout and big pike, and is also renowned for its fine accommodations and hospitality. To provide more varied angling opportunities, the camp maintains several float planes so that nearby fly-in lakes can be fished in addition to Black Lake and other waters accessible by boat from the main lodge. This is big fish country with limits of eight fish daily, five of which can be lake trout. Season is June 1 to October 1 with the fishing being uniformly good throughout this period for most species. Tackle recommendations include heavy duty casting or spinning outfits loaded with 24-lb. test line. Bring along a good assortment of Darveid spoons and other lures suitable for pike and lakers. Jigs work best for walleye, and fly equipment and light spinning gear is the ticket for grayling. Other recommended equipment should include rain gear, insulated underwear, warm fishing clothing, boots, and lounge clothing for around camp. Fishing license is $10. Tour includes roundtrip air transportation from Lynn Lake, Manitoba, to the camp, six nights accommodations, all meals, six days fishing with boat and motor for each two persons. Fly-in trips to other lakes and guide service are extra.

Saskatchewan

CHURCHILL RIVER FISHING—6 DAYS

The Churchill River, 50 miles north of La Ronge, Saskatchewan, is a hot spot for walleye and northern pike, and Sportsman's Lodge offers facilities to match. Here Cree Indian guides take fishermen back into shallow bays where big pike cruise the weedbeds on the lookout for an angler's spoon to gobble up. Or, if a limit of walleye is the order of the day, they'll maneuver the canoe into an eddy below a waterfall and recommend a jig or a small spinning lure. The Churchill is steeped in legend of the fur trade and is a land of beauty. Deep clear lakes bordered by lichen-covered granite and stands of pine and aspen are connected by white-water rapids. Nesting waterfowl inhabit the coves and bays and eagles soar overhead. A big moose pauses at the water's edge to watch a canoe go by, and the short Arctic night is punctuated by the melodious howl of huskies from a distant island. This is good living, good fishing, and a trip to enjoy and remember. Season is from the last of May to the end of September. Standard spinning or casting gear is recommended, but be sure to bring along a spare rod. Lures and other items of tackle may be purchased in the lodge store. Other recommended gear includes insulated underwear, warm fishing togs, rain suit, totes or boots, and informal attire for camp. Package tour includes five nights accommodations, all meals, boat, motor and guide for each two persons, and filleting and freezing of your catch. License, $10 extra. Round trip air fare from La Ronge, $45; from Flin Flon, $100; pay locally.

ONTARIO MOOSE HUNT—8 DAYS

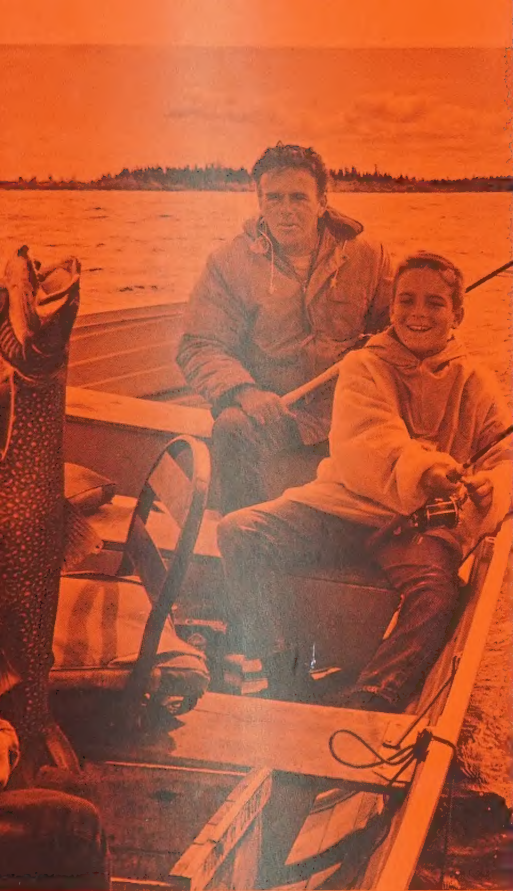

King of North America's game trophies, the huge, imposing moose presents a hunting challenge that continually lures sportsmen into the wildest, most remote areas on the continent. These prized creatures prefer dense forests coursed by marshy streams and sprinkled with grassy lakes. And, though ungainly in appearance, they can negotiate the heaviest cover with surprising grace and speed. The location of this hunt in the Little Abitibi Lake country is considered one of Canada's best areas, where success rates are traditionally high. Hunting here is done entirely by canoe during the fall mating season, September 15 to October 20. Expert native guides employ birch bark calls to coax game to the shoreline and into the open. Campsites are located in outlying spots; each two days the outfitter's float plane checks the camp and picks up meat for transfer to cold storage in Cochrane. Hunters supply own rifle and personal effects. Warm clothing and foul weather gear must be taken. Tour includes food and equipment for seven nights; one guide for each two hunters; transportation of game; and transfers from Cochrane. Non-resident license, $125; purchase at Cochrane. Moose export fee of $35 charged on departure. Charter flight from Timmins to Cochrane is $40 per person, pay locally.

JAMES BAY FLY-IN FISHING—6 DAYS

Accessible only by air, the streams and lakes of Ontario's James Bay region remain a vast reservoir for braggin'-size trout and pike. You have a choice of two excellent locations, depending upon the catch desired. Little Abitibi Lake and tributary streams are a pike fisherman's paradise. Northern can be taken consistently. Walleye fishing is best during late spring and early summer; later these tasty fish become nocturnal feeders and must be taken in the evening along shoals and at the base of waterfalls. Fifty miles north of Abitibi, the Yesterday River country is as unspoiled as its name and the timberland which surrounds it. Here, you'll find superb lake and speckled trout fishing. Both Abitibi and Yesterday Lodges are located in virgin spruce forests and offer exceptionally comfortable and modern facilities. The season runs from May 15 through October 15. Tour includes six days/five nights accommodations and meals; fishing with boat, motor and gasoline; and roundtrip car transfers between Timmins airport and Cochrane. Roundtrip air fares between Cochrane and Little Abitibi is $40; between Cochrane and Yesterday, $70 (pay locally). Tour operators may elect to fly guests directly from Timmins to either lodge. Guides are available for an additional $20 per day.

Alaska

KULIK LODGE FISHING—5 DAYS

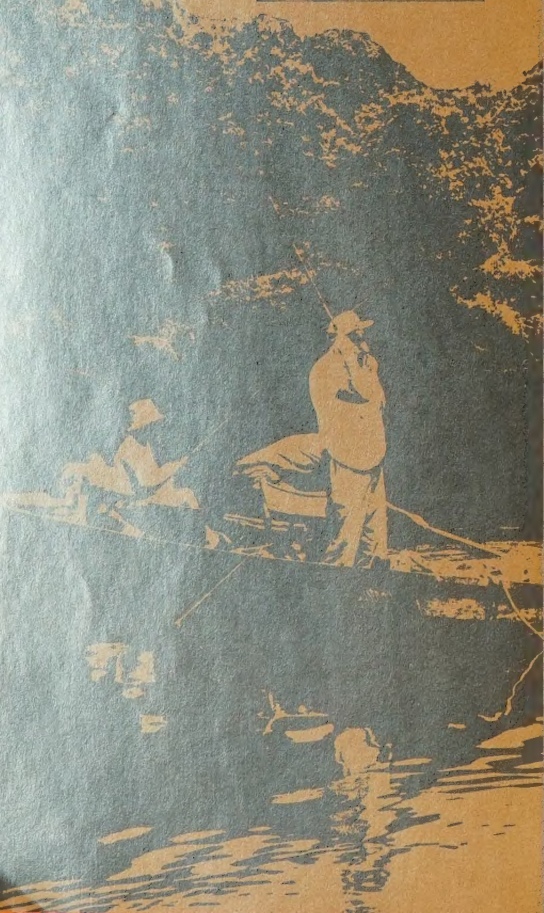

The Bristol Bay region of Alaska is home of the world's largest sockeye salmon spawning grounds. This area is comprised of hundreds of miles of rivers and streams, lakes and lagoons. It also provides an endless amount of great trout waters that yield catches surpassing all expectations. In addition to salmon, rainbow and lake trout, Dolly Varden, grayling, pike and Arctic char are the prized species in this Alaskan fly-in wilderness. Kulik Lodge features comfortable, all-modern cabins and a central main lodge for dining and relaxing. Meals are served family-style, guaranteed to please man-size appetites. The package price includes four nights accommodations, all meals, limited guide and boat service, and freezing and care of your fish. Licenses extra, but available at lodge. Float planes are available for optional excursions to remote and otherwise inaccessible waters. You'll need to pack warm clothing and fishing tackle. July 1 to September 30. Daily roundtrip flights between Anchorage and Kulik, $116.

Arkansas

ARKANSAS FLOAT TRIPS—4 DAYS

The White River below Bull Shoals dam passes through some of the most beautiful Ozark mountain country in Arkansas. Its crystal clear, cold waters harbor rainbow and brown trout, often weighing four to six lbs. These hard-fighting fish are plentiful and produce action to satisfy the tastes of every angler. But the real charm of fishing here is the leisurely way it is done.

Comfortably relaxed in a deck chair aboard a big 20-foot flat-bottomed john boat, you drift with the current and enjoy the scenery and solitude for which the Ozarks are famed. Jim Gaston's White River Resort furnishes everything for the angler, including guides who know the waters and the fish. A commissary boat precedes each party and has a river camp set up before you arrive at the end of the day. The tour includes reception at Harrison, Arkansas; roundtrip transportation to Gaston's Resort; three nights accommodations; meals; camping equipment; boat; tackle; licenses; cook and guides. First and last nights are spent at White River Resort; middle two days fishing on river with one overnight stay. The trip operates year round with March through October the most productive season. Similar floats are available on the nearby Buffalo River, famous for its smallmouth bass. However, these are offered only from April to June.

Colorado

ROCKY MOUNTAIN BIG GAME HUNTS

Elk and deer. And the beautiful western slopes of the Rockies. Four expertly outfitted hunts take you into the high country of northern Colorado's Steamboat Springs region. Here, the majestic vistas of mountain and sky provide a perfect backdrop for those seeking record-sized racks and man-sized adventure. This country is rugged. The game is plentiful. And the high mountain pack-ins are especially appealing to hunters who enjoy "roughing it" in distant line camps. At any altitude, you'll receive the personal service and attention necessary for an enjoyable and productive hunt. These tours include tent or cabin accommodations, use of horses and jeep, cook and guide service, plus skinning and preparation of game. Hunters must supply their own sleeping bag, license, rifle and ammunition. (In addition pack plenty of warm clothing, gloves and thermal underwear.) Written application for a special cow elk permit must be received by the Colorado Fish and Game Department by June 1; other licenses can be purchased upon arrival in Colorado. The elk season begins in mid-October and ends prior to deer hunting during the first two weeks in November. Outfitter will provide exact dates.

Hawaii

HAWAII HUNTING AND FISHING—4 DAYS

Hunting and fishing opportunities abound in the Pacific paradise of our 50th state, and they can be enjoyed equally by both serious trophy-minded sportsmen and island visitors to whom outdoor pursuits are of secondary concern. Waters surrounding the main island of Hawaii are rich in game fish; black, blue and striped marlin and sailfish head the list of deep-sea prizes, with a host of smaller species of interest to light tackle anglers. The hunter can pursue wild boar and sheep in the mountainous high country, or experience fine wingshooting in the lush valleys. Pheasant, quail and partridge provide good sport during the season. This tour features three nights modified American plan accommodations at the luxurious Mauna Kea Beach Hotel and transfers from Kamuela airport.

Wisconsin

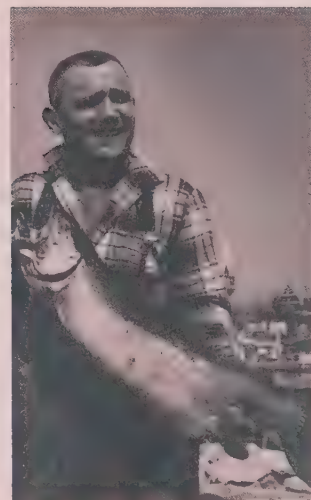

ALGOMA SALMON & TROUT—5 DAYS

Algoma, the "salmon and trout capital of Wisconsin," located 25 miles from Green Bay, offers access to some of Lake Michigan's most productive waters. Charter boats may average 15 to 20 trophy fish a day within a relative short distance offshore. Fishing here begins July 1 for big lake trout, with coho and chinook salmon showing up in the catches as the season progresses. September is considered best for salmon, with fish in the 40-lb. category a possibility. Tour includes three half days of trolling aboard a 35-foot charter boat with tackle and bait provided, four nights deluxe motel accommodations and National rental car plus 100 miles allowance (picked up at Green Bay airport). Purchase license locally. Note: pack spinning outfit to take advantage of good shore casting for browns, rainbows and occasionally brook trout. Special arrangements for fall and winter charters can be made after main season ends November 1; also, excellent early spring fishing for browns and rainbows from skiffs can be arranged, Contact operator.

DEESEA FISHING—4 DAYS

This Mexican port on the Pacific coast occupies a strategic position along the migration routes of game fish in this region. Located nearly opposite the tip of Baja California, at the mouth of the Sea of Cortez, Mazatlan offers convenient access to the untold millions of fish that move in and out of these highly productive waters all year long. From mid-autumn to mid-spring, striped marlin are the most frequently taken billfish. When they head out into the Pacific, giant sailfish appear for the following six months. During the summer, blue marlin, black marlin and dolphin add further spice to the angling menu. At peak periods, dozens of billfish can be spotted in a single day, and charter boats may bring in an average of four trophies per trip. Yellowfin tuna, snook, grouper, wahoo, amberjack and roosterfish are abundant and provide great sport for light-tackle fans. This tour includes three nights of modified American plan accommodations at Hotel Playa; two full days of deepsea fishing with cruiser, crew, tackle, license and bait provided; all transfers between airport, hotel and docks. DUCK & DOVE SHOOTING—5 DAYS

The irrigated fields and marshlands near Mazatlan provide ideal habitat for a number of wintering waterfowl. Pintail, green, cinnamon and blue wing teal, bluebill and gadwall ducks supply most of the action. White wing and mourning dove quicken the pace. Wild pigeon add variety to the bag. Shooting begins in November and doesn't cool off until late April. Hunts are scheduled for the early riser—leave Mazatlan at 5 a.m. and return around noon. For afternoon sportsmen, depart shortly after 1 p.m. and return to Mazatlan about 8. One of the Aviles brothers personally accompanies each trip, insuring excellent guide service. Ground transportation to hunting areas is in specially equipped camper vehicles complete with air conditioning and refrigeration. The package price includes five days/four nights accommodations on a modified American plan; airport transfers; all ground transportation; and three half-days hunting with guns, dogs and guide. Ammunition is available for approximately $5 per box.

Acapulco

ACAPULCO SUN & SAILS—4 DAYS

Acapulco has grown into a resort of international fame that throbs with vitality. But there's more to this bountiful vacation retreat than sunshine and bikinis. For the fisherman, the offshore Pacific waters contain an abundance of billfish. Marlin and sailfish provide exciting action for trophy fishermen almost all year long, with November through March being considered the "peak" season. And, light tackle enthusiasts find plenty of dolphin, roosterfish, tuna and other scrappy gamesters to challenge. Accommodations are available at Hotel Boca Chica located on a secluded point overlooking Boca Chica Strait or the new Acapulco Princess Hotel. Rooms are spacious and air conditioned, each offering a breathtaking view from its private veranda. Savor the house specialties, fresh lobster and charbroiled steaks—or sun along Caletilla Beach. The Jai Lai Palace, bull ring and native shopping district are within convenient walking distance. Acapulco's climate is remarkable—winter lows never dip below 60, and summer days are complemented by a continuous breeze from the ocean. This tour includes roundtrip airport transfers; four days, three nights accommodations; meals (modified American plan); one-day charter boat fishing with crew, tackle and bait.

EL TARPON TROPICAL—5 DAYS

The Gulf of Mexico floods through a wide pass at the bottom of the Yucatan Peninsula, mixing with three major rivers to form Laguna de Terminos. This 60-by-20-mile lagoon is an angler's paradise for light-tackle species—tarpon, snook, barracuda, grouper, snapper, permit, sea trout and dozens of others. You'll cast to baby tarpon rolling on the flats along the coves, or go after 100-pounders in deeper water. Jumping 30 a day is not uncommon, but few come to gaff. Fishing is done from 16-ft. outboard-powered skiffs with experienced guides. Accommodations complement the seaside setting—sandstone cottages with thatched roofs; each room has twin beds and a private shower. Large screened windows capture the ocean breezes. American dishes and Mexican specialties are served on an all-you-can-eat basis. The bar is fully stocked. The package price includes five days/four nights accommodations with meals, boat and guide service for three days fishing, licenses, reception at Ciudad del Carmen and ground and water transportation to and from the lodge. Sportsmen can reach Ciudad del Carmen and El Tarpon Tropical via Mexico City on Braniff, connecting with Aeronaves de Mexico.

MEXICO'S GOOSE PARADISE—6 DAYS

Tierra de Gansos, "land of geese" in the fertile valley of Babicora, Mexico, is aptly named. Here, in a little known area about 185 miles from El Paso, Texas, birds from the Pacific and Central flyways congregate by the thousands for the winter season. Species include snow geese, Canadas, speckbellies, blues, mallards, redheads, pintails, teal and sandhill cranes. Daily limits are five geese, five cranes and fifteen ducks. Birds are cleaned and packed at the lodge. The season is November through February. Tour includes meals and comfortable accommodations for five nights; use of new 12 ga. Browning automatic, and guide service for four full days of wing shooting. Shells available at lodge. Luggage is restricted to 40 lbs. in soft packaging; so fill a dufflebag with dull-colored hooded parka, rubber knee-high boots, hip boots, wool socks, insulated underwear, heavy shirts, gloves, sunglasses and suntan lotion. Regular charter flights depart El Paso; roundtrip fare $95 per person, pay locally. To obtain hunting permit, forward $40.35 to the operator along with six passport-type photos, a letter from your local police department saying you are a citizen in good standing, and full personal description—complete name, address, date of birth, height, weight, sex, eye and hair color and any visible scars. This must accompany your deposit.

West Indies

WINDJAMMER CRUISES

The West Indies. White beaches and turquoise bays. A string of gems stretching southward under the Caribbean sun. St. Maarten and Montserrat and Marie Balante and Carriacou and the rest. Each with its own mood, its own story to tell. Here, where leisure is the mode of life, you'll discover real freedom—no phones, alarm clocks, traffic. No resort facades or social directors. Just tradewinds, crystal seas, paradise islands and a sailing ship you'll learn to love and respect. Windjammer Cruises offer "barefoot" vacations to three different island groupings.

THE LEEWARD ISLANDS—10 DAYS

The Polynesia hoists sail every second and fourth Tuesday from Antigua for a 10-day voyage among the Leeward Islands. You'll visit St. Barts, known in days of old as a smugglers' port; here, you'll find spear fishing at its best. St. Maarten, with its native French restaurants. Saba and a seldom-seen Dutch settlement perched along a volcano. Remote St. Eustatius, and St. Kitts with all its British bustle. Beautiful beaches and Carib Indians on Nevis. And Montserrat, a green garden with a touch of Irish brogue. Your port is Antigua's English harbor, once headquarters for Admiral Nelson's famous fleet. The Polynesia is a fun ship—the smallest, swiftest, most casual in the Windjammer fleet. Air routing to Antigua.

THE WINDWARD ISLANDS—10 DAYS

These cruises commence from Antigua each second and fourth Tuesday for the Windward Islands—famous for mountains and lush vegetation, black beaches and black magic. Your schooner, the Yankee Clipper, takes you to the French Bistros and fishing villages on Isles Des Saintes and on then to Dominica, the rugged settlement island of Carib Indians. You'll see St. Lucia (crowned by a steaming volcano), the spectacular Pitons and Marie Galante where women wear turbans and long, colorful dresses. The French Islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique are also on the itinerary. The Yankee Clipper, acquired from the Vanderbilt Estate, is considered one of the greatest sailing yachts ever built. Air routing to Antigua.

THE GRENADINES—10 DAYS

The Grenadines are truly far out islands—tiny, remote, captivating. A paradise for beachcombers. Depart Martinique and its French Creole atmosphere the first or third Tuesday for the playground of St. Lucia. From there it's Captain Bligh's "breadfruit island," St. Vincent, and Bequia, a yachtman's haven. Mustique is slow and easy, as are the Tobago Cays. Then to Carriacou and Grenada—rugged, lush and green with a Mediterranean-like fishing village smelling of spices from around the world. Your ship is the Flying Cloud, a large three-masted schooner with an added touch of luxury, including airconditioning and a private bath with each stateroom. Tour departs Martinique every 1st and 3rd Tuesday.

British Honduras

CARIBBEAN ADVENTURE—6 DAYS

Ambergris Cay, located 10 miles off the coast of British Honduras, is an isolated paradise of white sands, blue waters and coconut palms. Protected by a giant coral reef that buffers the Caribbean, Ambergris Cay boasts a South Seas-like appearance. This reef considered second in size only to the Great Barrier Reef of Australia, lies a half mile offshore. Its sheltered waters are perfect for sailing, diving and swimming. Beyond, scuba equipment allows exploration of 50-foot channels, endless caves and the "blue hole," made famous by Jacques Cousteau. Here, various fish abound, including groupers, snappers, jacks, angelfish, triggerfish, parrot fish, barracuda and ling. Bonefish are abundant at the end of the island and in the flats on the leeward side. And deep channels hold populations of tarpon weighing up to 80 pounds. The temperature remains in the 80s most of the year, so pack tropical weight wear: shorts and swimming suits, suntan lotion, a long-sleeve shirt and wide brim hat. Divers should bring fins, mask, snorkel, regulator, life vest and deck shoes; the rest of the gear is furnished. The package price includes roundtrip air charter between Belize airport and San Pedro on Ambergris Cay; six days/five nights accommodations at Paradise House Hotel; all meals; for divers—use of dive boat, tanks (including air refills), backpack and weight-belt, or all snorkel gear; for fishermen—tackle, bait, boat, motor and guide service; use of sailboat, motor boat and water skis; and a guided photo expedition among the island's exotic birds. Side trips to Ambergris Cay are available at an extra cost.

BAHAMAS BONEFISHING—5 DAYS

Standing on the fighting deck of a skiff you search the shallow flats for the glistening tails of feeding bonefish. This shadowy, torpedo-shaped fish is a wary creature which spooks easily and vanishes like a whisp of smoke in the wind. But, when it inhales your lure it has the power to strip 100 yards of line off a reel in its initial run. Talk about light tackle action, this is it. Site of this tour is the Deep Water Cay Club, located on the east end of Grand Bahama Island, 120 miles from Florida. Accommodations are provided in separate cottages equipped with all conveniences. The main lounge has dining and lounge facilities, and overlooks the white sand beach and blue-green waters of this Bahamian angling retreat. And that's what this Club is—a retreat for the man who seeks outdoor excitement during the day and relaxation after sundown. Tackle recommendations include fly fishing equipment or light spinning gear. Load reels with 8 lb. test line. Lures should include selection of bonefish jigs. Include heavier casting or spinning equipment for other species of fish. Bring a billed cap or broad-brimmed hat, tropical weight khakis, suntan lotion, sun glasses, and other attire and equipment suitable for the tropics. Tour includes five days and four nights accommodations, all meals, five half-days fishing with boat, motor and guide, and all the other facilities of the Club. Transportation is priced extra but is provided by charter aircraft from West Palm Beach; $70 round trip per person. Tour operates from November 1 through June 30.

Costa Rica

CASA MAR FISHING CLUB—8 DAYS

The rugged jungle of northeastern Costa Rica is not an easy place to construct comfortable accommodations. But during the first five months of each year, this area offers spectacular tarpon fishing. And so, Casa Mar was built and since its opening three seasons ago, the fishing club has gained international acclaim. Tarpon here are big and numerous. Most catches are in the 60- to 80-lb. category, though tarpon weighing more than 130 lbs. have been taken from these rich waters. Snook are also abundant; the ISFA record, a 36-pounder, was taken here. Casa Mar consists of four double cabins and a spacious main lodge with all the amenities for a pleasant stay. Pack your duffle bag with khaki slacks and shorts, long and short sleeve shirts, rain gear, a wide brim hat, sweater or windbreaker, sun glasses and tackle. Tour includes roundtrip air transportation between San Jose and Casa Mar; seven nights accommodations with meals; and seven days fishing with experienced guide, 14-ft. fiberglass skiff and 18 hp motor. PANAMA'S BLACK MARLIN—8 DAYS

Black marlin are the top prizes at Pinas Bay, 150 miles southeast of Panama City, in Pacific waters that also hold good numbers of striped marlin and Pacific sailfish. Additionally, a host of light tackle species prove highly attractive: amberjack, corvina, roosterfish, pompano, dolphin, snook, wahoo, rainbow runner, and others. The host facility here is Tropic Star Lodge, a luxurious resort overlooking Pinas Bay. Accommodations are in air-conditioned, smartly furnished duplex bungalows. Or, guests can reserve the El Palacio, a plush three-bedroom "palace" of exceptional beauty built for the private use of its original owner (accommodates six). Food and service are excellent. And fishing equipment consists of a fleet of 31-ft. twin-diesel Bertrams. Pack tropical-weight clothing. Long sleeve shirt and long pants, wide-brim hat, canvas gloves, and suntan lotion are recommended. Light tackle fans should bring own gear. Tour includes roundtrip DC-3 flight between Panama City and Pinas Bay; accommodations and meals for a Saturday-through-Saturday stay; six days fishing with cruiser, captain, crew, bait and heavy tackle. (Note: guests using lodge tackle are charged $30 extra for terminal gear.) Tour operates all year; heavy rains may be encountered in some months.

GOLD OF THE RIO PARANA—7 DAYS

The dorado. Probably the toughest fighting freshwater fish found anywhere. First, there's a flash of gold from the sparkling scales sheathing his salmon-shaped body. Then, a muscle-straining encounter that may find this powerful fish towing your boat upstream against the Parana River's swift current. Tireless jumpers, dorado average 20 lbs., but 65-lb. lunkers are possible. For trolling, take a double-handed seven- or eight-ft. spinning rod with lots of backbone, a light saltwater reel, plenty of 20-lb. test line plus wire leader. Fly fishermen should pack a salmon rod with large streamers. For casting and spinning tackle, bring an assortment of muskie-sized spoons, spinners and plugs. Season is April 1 through October. Best fishing is June through October (much like autumn)—clothing should include a rain suit, warm fishing togs and informal lodge wear. Later in the season, pack tropical clothing, sun glasses and sun tan lotion. Prices include first-day reception at the Posadas airport and transportation to the comfortable fishing lodge; five full days of dorado fishing with guide, boat and motor; accommodations and meals, and return to the Posadas airport for departure.

ARGENTINE DORADO FISHING— 7 DAYS

Here's a unique opportunity to experience fine fishing for golden dorado and to savor the hospitality of a big Argentine ranch at the same time. Location is the famous Parana River north of Buenos Aires, and on this expedition accommodations are provided in the deluxe guest quarters of a 15,000-acre "estancia." Boats and guides are provided for dorado fishing, and there are also horses to ride, a variety of upland bird shooting, and swimming in the ranch tank. Some tackle and shotguns are available, but guests are advised to bring their own equipment. Season is from June through October.

Tour includes reception and hotel in Buenos Aires (2 nights), auto and commercial air transportation to the ranch, all meals and five nights' accommodations at ranch, four days fishing with boat, motor and guide, laundry service, riding horses, etc. Dorado are an aggressive hard-fighting game fish and grow up to 70 lbs. in this river. Rods should be relatively heavy, reels loaded with 30-lb. test line, and all lures should have extra sturdy hooks. Bring a spare rig, plenty of lures, and the usual extras such as wire leaders, swivels, extra line, etc. All clothing should be informal, and should include long-sleeved shirts, broad-brimmed hat, sneakers, and a sweater for cool evenings. Don't forget camera and film, suntan lotion, insect repellent, etc.

ARGENTINE SALMON—7 DAYS

The lakes and streams north of Bariloche offer sportsmen fast action with trout and salmon. Amid snow-capped peaks and alpine forests, fishermen may hook 40 or more rainbows a day, averaging better than three lbs. each. Brown trout frequently weigh in at 14 lbs., and 10-lb. landlocked salmon are not uncommon. You'll also catch brook trout, though they're fewer in number. The Chimehuin, Malleo, Manso and Foyel Rivers are excellent fly streams. They are very easy to wade and can generally be fished with a dry fly during afternoon hours. Many of the larger trout and salmon have been taken on casting gear while trolling deep mountain lakes—salmon up to 37 lbs., rainbows to 25 lbs., and browns to 26. Spinning and trolling produce big fish throughout the entire season which runs from November 15 until April 15; fly fishing is best from mid-December on. Pack tropical wear for Buenos Aires, including warmer clothing for the Bariloche area. Bring informal attire, a sweater and light topcoat, rain suit, sun glasses and suntan lotion. This tour includes airport transfers at Bariloche, six nights accommodations at hotels or ranches, meals, all ground transportation between Bariloche and fishing locations in Neuquen Province, equipment and guides. A boat with trolling motor may be rented for $15 per day if desired.

SECOND SEASON FOR DUCKS—5 DAYS

Below the equator seasons are reversed. As spring brings an end to winter's snow in the United States, Argentine waterfowl begin moving in anticipation of colder weather. Ducks and geese by the millions fly northward from Tierra Del Fuego and Santa Cruz over Argentina's beautiful "little Switzerland" region. Esquel, about 900 miles from Buenos Aires, is a waterfowler's paradise. Crisp mountain air. Breathtaking scenery. And almost limitless wing shooting. Here, geese are considered a serious threat to grain crops, and may be taken without restriction. Hunters may take up to 20 ducks a day. Though guns may be rented, we advise bringing your own 12 or 16 ga. shotgun. Pack hunting clothes for moderate to cold weather, and include a rain suit. The season begins in March and extends through August with best shooting in May, June and July. The tour includes reception at the Esquel airport, transfers, three full days shooting, guide service and hunting rights, four nights accommodations at hotel or ranch and meals. Shells and items of a personal nature are extra.

IGUASSU FALLS—3 DAYS

Here's your chance to discover gold at the end of a rainbow. The rainbow crowns the thundering water and perpetual mist known as Iguassu Falls which stretches two miles in perimeter along the borders of three countries—Brazil, Paraguay and Argentina. The gold is the fabulous, fighting golden dorado which can be found beneath the falls, a flashing streak in the fast waters. The adventure of doing battle with this fabled fish, and the almost overwhelming sights and sounds of the falls make this a real adventure. Fishing is not permitted within park boundaries, but may be done about six miles downstream from falls; season is April through October. Accommodations at the Hotel das Cataratas are first-class, with a view of the falls and its own swimming pool. Package price includes roundtrip transfers between the Iguassu airport and hotel; baggage handling; three days/two nights accommodations and meals; a day's fishing with boat and English-speaking guide, tackle and all tips. JUNGLE QUEEN EXPEDITION—8 DAYS

The Amazon Basin is a world of wilderness rivers and virgin forests. Uncharted by man. Unchallenged by civilization. Where giant cats stalk the wilds and huge fish swim the waters. Here's your chance to experience this intriguing land in comfort. Witness the tropical wonders of the Amazon jungle along the Araguaia River. Barter with primitive Indians. Fish for prehistoric-looking denizens weighing several hundred pounds. And all the while, enjoy the comforts and international cuisine of a floating "hotel." The Jungle Queen is a 75-foot "boatel" featuring eight double cabins with private showers between each two cabins, dining room with fine food and drink, well-stocked bar, and deck for sunning and sightseeing. A fleet of eight outboard-powered skiffs will take you daily into remote jungle lakes and river tributaries. You'll battle 500-lb. piraiba, giant piratinga, peacock bass, piranha, aruana, surubim and other exotic gamesters. In all, there are more than 400 species of fish in the Amazon Basin. Most of them have never seen a lure. Three fishing rods and reels are allowed by Brazilian customs. Include one heavy rod for handling 50-lb. test line and one light casting or spinning rod for 15-lb. line. Bring metal lures, spoons and solid surface plugs, wire leader and large supply of extra line. Pack khaki pants, both short- and long-sleeved shirts with large pockets, cotton socks, comfortable shoes and ankle-high sneakers, a raincoat, sweater, wide-brimmed hat, sun tan lotion, sun glasses, insect repellent, swim suit and personal toilet articles. Include binoculars and camera plus plenty of color film. Days are warm and humid, nights pleasant, even cool. The season extends from May 1 through November. Tour includes reception at Brasilia airport; flight to Bananal Island in the Araguaia River; boatel accommodations and meals; boat, motor and guide (for each two fishermen) during Tuesday-Monday boatel expedition on Araguaia River, and Tuesday afternoon air taxi return to Brasilia.

CUMILAHUE TROUT FISHING— 10 DAYS

Here's the ticket for the angler who's heard about the magnificent fighting qualities of Chilean trout, but has to see it to believe it. Cumilahue Lodge is located in the Lago Ranco area where trout average three pounds and can be fished by wading nearby streams or taken by floating the Calcurrupe River which swarms with browns and rainbows. You may also take the hour-and-a-half trip across Lake Maihue to the Maihue River where trout are abundant. Depending on water conditions, you may visit a number of regional streams. Meals feature freshly caught trout with almond sauce, superb Chilean wine, cheese and apple pie for dessert or lamb deliciously barbecued along the riverbank at noon. The lodge, overlooking the Cumilahue River, provides comfortable accommodations, friendly service, and a strategic view of the breathtaking mountain scenery. Tour includes reception at Santiago airport, transfers, one night hotel in Santiago, eight nights room and all meals while at lodge; fishing arrangements, fishing license, lunch on the river, and transportation to and from Santiago. The lodge operates from November 1st to March 31st with the best fishing during early and late Chilean summer (November, December, the latter half of February and March). Recommended tackle includes medium-action fly rod, tapered leaders and flies (fly fishing only is allowed on the Cumilahue); chest waders with felt bottoms are a must and a wading stick will come in handy. Take woolen socks and shirts, pullovers and other warm clothing for nights and early mornings. Include lighter garb for day wear and rain gear. Dress at the lodge is informal.

RAINBOW FLY FISHING CLUB — 10 DAYS

One of the most famous trout fishing clubs in the world is the Rainbow Fly Fishing Club of Chile where a trophy trout of five lbs. or more are almost a sure thing. This is a semiprivate lodge owned by a group of avid sportsmen from the U. S. and situated on an imposing high bluff overlooking Lake Panquipulli. The two rivers that flow into and out of this lake provide a bountiful supply of big browns and scrappy rainbows, to be taken on flies only. The River Fui is usually fished by boat, but there are excellent stretches for wading; its entrance is known for consistently producing trout over 10 lbs. On the Rio Enco most fishing is done from a boat handled by expert "boteros" (boatmen) who guide you to the choicest pools and prepare delicious mid-day Chilean barbecues along the riverbank. Season is from November 1 to March 31 with best fishing during early and late Chilean summer (November, December, the latter half of February, and March). Recommended tackle includes rod, with reel large enough to take 100 yards of backing with a GAF or forward tapered line. Flies can be purchased locally, but it is wise to bring your own; suggested are salmon flies, muddler minnows, Jack Scott, green highlanders, gray ghosts and platinum blondes. Dress at the lodge is informal. Include rain gear and some warm clothing for night and early mornings. Chest waders or boots with felt soles are essential and a wading stick will come in handy. Tour includes reception at Santiago, transfers, one night hotel in Santiago, eight nights room and all meals while at the club, fishing arrangements, fishing license, lunch on the river, transportation from and to Santiago.

Colombia

DOVES, DOVES, DOVES—3 DAYS

This fast-paced wing shooting expedition is conducted in the broad and fertile Cauca Valley of Colombia, nestled between a pair of towering mountain ranges. Game is a species of Andes dove which resemble our migratory game bird and is so abundant that it represents a threat to crops in the area. Hunting is European-style—shooting from stands in the passes and trying to connect with the speedy, dodging targets as they streak overhead. So fast is the action that bruised shoulders and smoking gun barrels are the order of the day, and even good shots sometimes burn up a half dozen boxes of shells. An English-speaking guide accompanies each party, and other personnel are provided to retrieve and clean game bagged.

Accommodations are provided in a Cali hotel and/or in comfortable tent camps in the field. Type of accommodations may be specified by client. Cali, one of the principal cities of Colombia is famous for its scenery, beautiful women, and orchid plantations. Climate is tropical, but the 5000-ft. altitude creates ideal temperatures. Package price includes reception at the airport and transfers to downtown Cali, two nights accommodations in a first-class hotel or comfortable tent camp, all meals in the field, all ground transportation, hunting license and two days hunting with English-speaking guide and other crew member. Shotguns may be brought into Colombia for this hunt, but a license must be obtained prior to departure. Contact outfitter more than a month in advance for this service. 12 ga. shotguns and shells are also available from outfitter. Other recommended gear should include shooting glasses, ear plugs, tropic weight khakis with long sleeves and trousers, broad rimmed hat, sneakers, etc.

TROPICAL BASS FISHING—8 DAYS

If you're a bass fisherman this trip is for you. The colorful golden bass is a species of tucunare but in body appearance and habit is very similar to our largemouth. Here the resemblance ends, however; for sheer power, savagery and stamina, nothing can compare to this exotic Amazon fish. Average catch is 5 to 10 lbs., but the species is thought to attain a size of 30 lbs. or more. Current rod and reel record is 17½ lbs. and was set here last year. Site of this fishing action is the El Dorado lakes which are located in the jungle region of Colombia. Here is a new and modern lodge featuring comfortable accommodations, fine cuisine, and first class fishing facilities. Probably the most remote fishing camp in the world, El Dorado is still more accessible than some fly-in Canadian fishing resorts. Season is October through April 15, and the fishing is usually good throughout this period. The golden bass of El Dorado are hard on tackle, so bring plenty. Include several rods and reels, extra line, and more than the normal number of lures. Spoons work well, as do standard surface lures. From a practical standpoint these fish will gobble up almost any largemouth lure. In the clothing line include long sleeved khakis, broad-brimmed hat, sneakers, a sweater for cooler evenings, suit and tie for a stopover in cosmopolitan Bogota, sun lotion, sun glasses, etc. Mosquitoes are rare so insect repellent is not essential. Package includes seven nights accommodations and meals, reception and transfers from the Miraflores air strip, seven days fishing with boat, motor, and guide for each two persons, care of catch and trophies, etc.

BIRD WATCHERS SPECIAL—6 DAYS

Colombia has more birds than any other country in the world. Living within its borders are 1556 separate species, which is twice as many as the U. S. can claim. Included are 135 members of the hummingbird family, more than 50 different species of parrots and macaws, waterfowl, hawks and eagles, flycatchers, colorful long-beaked toucans, warblers, tangers, and hundreds of other birds that the average nature student has never seen or heard of. And, a good percentage of this collection of tropical birdlife is concentrated around the shores of the El Dorado lakes. If there was ever a bird watchers' paradise, this is it. Equally important, facilities are available for the observation of the fauna and flora which abound here. El Dorado Lodge is a modern resort located in an orchid-draped forest clearing on the shore of one of these lakes. Here are modern accommodations, main lodge with dining room, lounge, and bar, boats and motors for transportation, and guides to lead the forays back into the forest. With the nearest road 500 miles away, El Dorado is an unspoiled naturalist's retreat. Package includes transfers from Miraflores airstrip, six days and five nights accommodations, all meals, and daily guided expeditions into the surrounding area. Best season is from April through September for bird watching but most species are plentiful year-round. Bring sneakers or lightweight jungle boots, long-sleeved khakis or similar attire, broad-brimmed hat, sun glasses, binoculars, camera with long lens. Add a dress suit for Bogota and a sweater for evenings at the lodge. Mosquitoes are rare but insect repellent should be included.

TROPICAL FISH COLLECTING—6 DAYS

Here's a new idea for tropical fish buffs. Collect your own tropical fish specimens. Bring 'em back alive. You might even sell enough to pay for your trip and keep the rest. Stock an aquarium that will be the envy of everyone who sees it. Regardless, this is an adventure which should be considered by everybody interested in this hobby. Site of this expedition on the Amazon is Leticia, Colombia. Operator is veteran wildlife expert and fisheries collector Mike Tsalickis. Accommodations are provided in a new, modern motel with swimming pool. Meals are plain but tasty. Daily expeditions are made from Leticia to surrounding lakes and small streams. Here, specimens are collected, sorted and transferred to tanks which are brought back to headquarters where fish are placed in larger holding tanks pending shipment back to the U. S. This package includes transfers from the Leticia airport, five nights accommodations, all meals, four days in the jungle collecting tropical fish, all required equipment, boat, motor and guide for each two persons, shipping containers, export license, packing fish, etc. Good sports fishing is available on this tour so bring your fishing tackle. Include tropical clothing, sun lotion, insect repellent, sneakers, camera, and other personal gear. Some advance knowledge of tropical fish of the Amazon is recommended, and a guide book on the subject is desirable, also.

RAINBOWS OVER THE ANDES—7 DAYS

Here's a trout fishing paradise tucked away in the Andes border country of Colombia and Ecuador which few Norte Americano anglers have discovered. Lake Cocha is a big and beautiful lake which abounds with rainbow trout. Average catch is in the 2- to 3-lb. class, but what these fish lack in size they make up for in numbers. Larger fish inhabit these waters, but they are not taken as frequently. One of the most delightful aspects of this Andes adventure is the small chalet-type hotel where you'll stay. Accommodations are comfortable, service is superb and the meals are a treat. These factors combined with the hospitality of management and the scenic surroundings make this an experience to long remember. Most fishing is done by trolling slow wobbling lures. However, the trout will take flies and a variety of other "hardware" if presented properly. Native guides are willing and knowledgeable, but do not speak English. Motors and boats are first-class and well maintained. English is spoken by the owner and a few other hotel personnel. Lake Cocha is reached by air from Cali to Pasto, and then by auto through the mountains. Package includes reception, transfers in Cali and two nights first-class hotel accommodations in Cali; reception in Pasto, roundtrip transfers by auto to the lake, four nights American plan accommodations at Cocha Chalet; three full days and two half days fishing with boat, motor and guide. Tour operates year-round except for October and November. Best fishing is from February to September. There are no limits.

THE WORLD'S BILLFISHING CAPITAL

Ecuador's Carnero Inn, an ultra-modern resort hotel on the westernmost tip of this South American country, overlooks the world's finest deepsea fishing grounds. At this point in the Pacific, the cool Humboldt and warm Panama Current meet, creating a plentiful food supply that supports incredible numbers of trophy billfish. Marlin, Pacific sailfish and big-eye tuna from these waters have earned a prominent place in IGFA records. Sails are most abundant April through November. Black marlin are caught from May to November, while tuna are taken in the months of January, February and March. Striped marlin are present and cooperative the year around, and sporting, tasty dorado are everywhere. Living is luxurious at Carnero Inn. Spacious air-conditioned rooms and suites each have private balconies overlooking miles of beach. A gourmet menu features shrimp cebiche, lobster thermidor, dolphin meunier and charcoal-broiled fillets. For diversion, there's tennis, a beautiful swimming pool and action at a nearby casino. Tours include reception at Guayaquil airport, transfers to Carnero Inn, all meals and accommodations, and cruiser with crew, tackle and bait for fishing.

JUNGLE RIVER SAFARI—7 DAYS

Explore the wilderness rivers of Ecuador's Oriente. The Rio Napo, the Aguatico, Yasuni, Lagarto Cocha or Curary. Here, in the upper Amazon Basin, you'll find adventure around every bend. The jungle through this region is known for its beauty and abundant game, including capybara, tapir, jaguar, ocelot, deer and wild boar. The rivers teem with aquatic challenges—piranha, hard-fighting dorado, paiche and pirarucu. This combination hunting-fishing-photographic safari begins in beautiful Quito, the mountain capital of Ecuador. Choice of individual rivers will be determined by water conditions and fish and game potentials. The package price includes roundtrip transportation via car or plane between Quito and your river destination; five full days hunting, fishing and filming on the river; all meals; custom-built raft or motor powered canoes; camp gear, guns, ammo and licenses; guide and camp personnel. Bring your own tackle—light saltwater gear with plenty of spoons and wire leader. Clothing should include a jacket, high boots, sneakers, cotton shirts and khaki pants. Also, pack your camera, ample film, suntan lotion, sun glasses and insect repellent. Hunting is done from drifting canoe and by still hunting on land. Guides are versed at both calling and baiting game. Safaris are conducted during the "dry season"—November through January.

ANDEAN TROUT PACK-IN—7 DAYS

High in the Andes of Ecuador amid some of the most breath-taking scenery on earth, crystal lakes and transparent streams await the trout fisherman seeking year-round action. Ideal food conditions and low fishing pressure have combined to produce catches ranging up to five and six pounds. Rainbows and hybrid trout, the latter, a cross between cutthroats and rainbows, provide great sport. This tour includes reception at the Quito airport, a tour of the city and first-night accommodations at a spacious private home. Early the next morning you'll travel by Land Rover and then pack horse to base camp. The camp site will be moved as you explore the sky-high trout fishing at altitudes to 13,000 feet. The outfitter provides roundtrip transportation between Quito and fishing areas; pack horses; camp equipment; meals; guide and camp helpers; boat, motor and necessary licenses, and spinning or spincasting equipment. Both rain and sunshine appear almost every day, and it can get quite chilly above 9,000 feet. Pack wool shirts, insulated underwear, a sweater and windbreaker, a wide-brimmed hat, comfortable boots, sun glasses, suntan lotion and personal toilet articles. Fishing good all year; best October—December.

THE ENCHANTED ISLES

The Galapagos Islands. Where friendly dragons eat cactus flowers from your hand, and seal pups romp in warm tidal pools. Separated from the South American mainland by 600 miles of ocean, the animals of the Galapagos developed in the absence of large predators and have no fear of man. It was here that Charles Darwin found inspiration for his book—"Origin of the Species." And even now, the evidence of evolution is apparent in the various flora and fauna. Photographers find the animals' unconcern towards human visitors results in startling close-ups. And there's no need for telephoto lenses. Bird watchers thrill at the islands' 89 species, 77 of which exist nowhere else on earth. In fact, the industrious finch, clowning booby and waddling penguin make confirmed bird watchers of nearly every visitor. The Galapagos Islands have something for everyone interested in wildlife, ecology, photography, fishing, scuba diving or just "off-the-path" adventure. Early Spanish explorers called this archipelago "The Enchanted Isle." They still are. Each island has its own fascinating story to tell—unique flora and fauna adapting to varied land forms and different climates. And the only way to see them is by boat.

The Lina-A is the ideal way to tour the Galapagos. Designed especially for island cruising, this luxury ship does much of its traveling by night, permitting maximum time ashore by day. Her 28 air-conditioned outside cabins provide comfortable accommodations for 57 guests. There's a well-stocked bar, spacious lounge, and three public decks for sunning or strolling. Fresh lobster and other gourmet delights head the dining room menu. Pack your camera, twice as much color film as you expect to shoot, a pair of binoculars and a portable tape recorder. Clothing should include khakis, summer-weight casual attire, a sweater, swim suit, rain poncho, hat, sneakers, sun glasses and suntan lotion. Baggage is limited to 40 lbs. per person. The tour price includes reception at Guayaquil and transfers at Baltra Islands, Lina-A accommodations, all meals, motor launch, lecture and guide services. Cruises begin and end on Tuesday or Friday at Baltra. Round trip air between Guayaquil and Baltra ($120) is not included.

4 DAY/3 NIGHT NORTHERN EXCURSION

Tuesday: Morning arrival at Baltra via air, transfer to LINA-A. Afternoon tour of Sullivan Bay, Bartolome Island: Pinnacle Rock rising some 100 ft. from the sea, volcanic landscape, fresh flow and mangrove region. You'll probably go in for a swim along the fine beach.

Wednesday: Sunrise cruise around Cape Berkeley (Albermarle Island) to Point Espinosa., Narborough Island: penguins, marine iguana, sea lion colony, flightless cormorants, mangrove forest and fresh lava flow. A box lunch on the Point before cruising nearby scenic shores and an afternoon King Neptune Crossing-of-the-Equator party.

Thursday: Morning tour at Darwin Bay, Tower Island: masked and red footed boobies, frigate birds, fur sea lions, swallow-tailed gulls and storm petrels. There is a crater lake in the center of the island. Afternoon visit to Turtle Bay.

Friday: Return to Baltra for air connections with the mainland.

PARAGUAY'S WILD DORADO—5 DAYS

This gold-sheathed "trout" is probably the toughest fighting freshwater fish you'll ever encounter. He has the speed and jumping qualities of a hooked tarpon, the tenacity of an Atlantic salmon, and the savage disposition of a bluefish. Fishing locations on this trip are determined by actual fishing conditions and water levels. The Tebicuary, Jejiu, Manduvira, Parana and Paraguay are among the highest productive rivers bearing dorado. They average 20 lbs., but 60-pounders are not unusual; limit, 10 per day. You'll be greeted at the Asuncion airport and transferred to the fishing area (or to your hotel, depending upon arrival time). The tour includes all ground transportation; lodging and meals outside Asuncion; licenses and three full days and two part days of fishing with boat, motor and bilingual guide. Pack plenty of muskie-sized spoons, spinners and solid plugs. Six-foot stiff action casting rods and 20-lb. test line tipped with wire leaders are ideal. Spinning rigs should include a seven-ft. stiff rod, light saltwater reel and 15- to 20-lb. test monofilament. Choose tropical weight clothing; daily temperatures average 88 degrees, cooling to 78 at night. Expect some rain. Best months are September through March (tour operates year round).

GRAN CHACO JAGUAR HUNT—14 DAYS

This big game safari takes you deep into Paraguay's Gran Chaco after the king of American cats—the jaguar. Finding, stalking and bagging one of these fleet-footed felines is among hunting's greatest thrills. This hunt utilizes the services of Tiger Hill Safaris whose expert guides and excellent success record insure an excellent chance of taking a trophy. Also this region contains larger numbers of jaguars, as well as other game including puma, ocelot, deer, tapir (up to 700 lbs.) and herds of wild boar. The safari operates May 1 to August 31 (Paraguay's winter months); daily temperatures are in the 60s, dropping into the 40s at night. There will be little rain, if any. Pack khakis, a sweater or jacket, short-sleeve sports shirts, wide-brim hat, ankle-high boots, dark sneakers, sun glasses, suntan lotion and insect repellent. Guns and ammunition are furnished. The package price also includes airport reception (and transfers to hotel depending upon arrival time); roundtrip transportation between Asuncion and the Chaco (460 miles one way); 12 days hunting with bilingual guide, supporting personnel, tents and dogs; and camp meals and beverages.

THE INCA EMPIRE—5 DAYS

Cuzco, capital of the Inca Empire, is the oldest continuously inhabited city in the Western Hemisphere. All about you, monuments of this ancient culture are to be seen. You'll visit Machu Picchu, the city the conquistadores never found; view irrigated farms hewn from steep rock with terraces winding up into the sky; and barter in an Indian market, Pisac, where business is carried out in the same fashion and fervor as it was centuries ago. This photographic safari begins in Lima on Thursday, Saturday or Sunday. You will be transferred to the airport for a morning flight to Cuzco. Upon arrival, a reception and transfers to the hotel. Load your camera for an afternoon tour of the city plus an excursion to the Incan fortress of Sacsahuaman overlooking Cuzco. Another dawn and you're snaking through the Andes on a hold-your-breath three-hour train ride to Machu Picchu. The guided tour of this 4000-year-old Lost City of the Incas ends before lunch, but you've got the rest of the day and evening for private explorations and a climb up Huayna Picchu. Accommodations are at Hotel Machu Picchu. The next day, it's back to Cuzco and some free time among the City's unusual old buildings which were constructed entirely of rocks fitted without the use of mortar. Sunday, you'll journey to Pisac for shopping and picture-taking in the traditional Indian market. This is the place to buy llama rugs and blankets, silver jewelry and other native handicraft direct from their creators. Tour includes airport transfers, rail and bus to Machu Picchu and car to Pisac; escorted tours of Cuzco, Machu Picchu and Pisac; three nights accommodations at Cuzco, one night at Machu Picchu; and all meals. The Lima/Cuzco/Lima flight on Faucett Airlines should be included on your international ticket, about $53.

meet our BRANIFF INTERNATIONAL outdoor council

We think there is something special about sportsmen. Without them there would be no deer roaming our woodlands. Migratory waterfowl would have followed the passenger pigeon into extinction. So would the whooping crane. Words like "conservation" and "habitat" would have no meaning. That's why the B! Outdoor Council was formed. This group represents a renowned assemblage of outdoor talent. It includes anglers, explorers, hunters, woodsmen, naturalists, and world travelers. All are specialists in some form of outdoor recreation, and each is a knowledgeable conservationist as well. Their job is to help us do a better job for you...to advise us concerning outdoor recreation opportunities in the Americas, and to help us keep in tune with nature and our environment.

General information and conditions

INTRODUCTION: This collection of package trips represents a cross-section of the better outdoor adventures available to sportsmen in the Americas. Each is considered to be a quality operation and should provide guests with the type of service and outdoor experience which is stated. However, due to the many variables involved, Braniff International cannot be responsible for or guarantee the ground portions of tours listed in this catalog.

YOUR TRAVEL AGENT: It costs no more to book one of these tours through a local travel agent than direct, and if you do so you will have enlisted the aid of a travel expert to advise you. Most travel agents, however, are not outdoor experts. Obtain their assistance in booking your reservation and making transportation arrangements. But, for details concerning the ground portions of these tour packages we suggest you correspond with the outfitter or his designated representative.

RESERVATIONS: Reservations should be made as far in advance as possible, and provide outfitter with all details requested. In all cases a down payment will be required at the time a booking is made.

RESERVATION DEPOSITS: Advance payments should go directly to the operator or his representative, not to Braniff International. Your travel agent will accept deposit, and process payments for all charges.

CONDITIONS AND FINAL PAYMENT: Each of these tour packages is subject to specific conditions and payment schedules listed under "Conditions" for each tour. Except when stated differently, final payment is usually due prior to departure.

This catalog is valid from April 1, 1972 to Mar. 31, 1973. Prices are subject to change.

REFUNDS OR CANCELLATIONS: Generally the same for each trip. Full refund usually is made less cost of reservation processing fee, any cable, long distance phone or tour card charges. Also deducted will be reasonable service charges and debits of any nonrecoverable monies committed to operators and hotel or to chartered aircraft. Cancellations made for any reason once the tour has begun are not refundable except for net recoverable monies, if any, from hotels, contractors and unused tickets. Tourist card fees and services are not refundable.

PASSPORTS & TOURIST CARDS: Passports are not required for travel to most countries in the Americas, but they are recommended. Obtain proof of citizenship (birth certificate) and present with suitable passport size photos to any Circuit Clerk. Price for this document is $12.00 and it is valid for five years. Allow several weeks for this service. Tourist cards are required for travel in many Latin American countries and may be obtained from Consulates in advance or from Braniff International. BI desk personnel at airports in Miami, New York, Houston, etc. offer this service to passengers bound for Latin American destinations. Passport photos are usually required; be sure to have several on hand when applying for tourist cards. For up-to-date information on tourist card and visa requirements consult your travel agent or Braniff International when making travel arrangements.

VACCINATIONS: A smallpox vaccination is required to re-enter the U.S. and is the only shot necessary for most of these trips. Other immunizations may be considered upon recommendation of a physician and depending upon changing local conditions.

GUNS AND AMMUNITION IMPORTATION REGULATIONS: Differ from country to country and may change. For information regarding the importation of guns contact the operator.

AIRPORT TAXES AND SERVICE CHARGES: Should be checked with your travel agent and are paid locally. Fees may vary without advance notice.

AIR TRANSPORTATION: Will be handled by Braniff International. Braniff has more flights going to more cities in South America than any other North American airline. Your travel agent can complete these arrangements for you. The following are participating carriers and may be used: Avianca, Varig, Pan American World Airways, Aerolineas Argentinas, LAN Chile, Canadian Pacific Air and other members of IATA and ATC.

RESPONSIBILITY: All bookings are accepted on the specific condition that Braniff International and its agents act only as booking agents for those providing transportation, accommodations or other services. All tickets, exchange orders or vouchers issued by operators are subject to the terms and conditions under which such means of transportation, accommodations or other services are offered or provided. The airlines concerned are not to be held responsible for any act, omission or event during the time passengers are not on board their conveyance. The passenger contract in use by the airlines constitutes the sole contract between airline and passenger.

Lower 30-day Excursion Fares Available: ask your Travel Agent. Fares will change April 1, 1972.

We'll spoil you all the way to the unspoiled places.

Braniff takes you places everybody hasn't been to.

That's understandable. We fly from more cities in the U.S.A. to more countries in South America than anyone else in the business. And on the way we soothe you with more luxuries than you'd ever expect. Because that's Braniff Style.

Stretch out in one of our big, bright Braniff airplanes on your way down to the lakes of Chile, the beaches of Brazil, the restaurants of Buenos Aires, the Isthmus of Panama. Our pursers and Pucci-clad hostesses' only concern is how to do more for you.

Try a Pisco Sour. Sample our menus created by Braniff's Board of International Chefs. Enjoy a fine Chilean wine. All while soaring to Peru to marvel at Machu Picchu and ruins that were old a thousand years ago. That's how we want to spoil you.

You'll like flying
Braniff Style.
